

Novir Approved as COVID-19 Vaccine Provider, Offering In-House Clinics for Companies and Other Customers

“We want to make this as convenient as possible,” says CEO of Milwaukee-based biotechnology company

MILWAUKEE -- Novir can now come to you to administer COVID-19 vaccines to your eligible employees and their families.

The Wisconsin Department of Health Services has approved the Milwaukee-based company as a vaccine provider, and Novir is using its allotted doses to schedule in-house vaccination clinics for area companies and other employers.

This unique approach -- when combined with a comprehensive testing program and other mitigation efforts -- offers an added layer of safety to help businesses and organizations reopen, and stay open, safely, responsibly and confidently.

“There are hundreds of vaccination sites across Wisconsin and the Milwaukee area, and thankfully many people are taking advantage of those opportunities to get their shots,” Novir President and CEO Alexander Kempe said. “Our solution is a bit different: We bring the vaccinations to you, to get more eligible employees vaccinated more quickly, so you can more quickly return to normal operations.

“We want to make this as convenient as possible, delivering a solution that saves time and money and offers employers a way to better manage COVID risk.”

Novir’s TRACK software further streamlines the process, offering a solution to target and segment eligible employees; online scheduling and forms; and other capabilities to ensure a smooth process.

The DHS has initially provided Novir with doses of the Moderna and Pfizer vaccines, which are administered in two doses. Kempe said he hopes the addition of on-site vaccination clinics, encouraged by the DHS, will help speed up distribution of the vaccines. “Wisconsin is already near the top in getting shots in arms. We want to help keep it there,” he said.

Novir strictly follows DHS guidelines around eligibility and will only provide vaccinations for those who meet that criteria. Eligibility focuses on specific risks of disease, death, and hospitalization, as well as risk of exposure and spread of disease. As of March 22, individuals with certain medical conditions became eligible for the COVID-19 vaccine.

Said Novir Chief Medical Officer Dr. Dirk Steinert: “Everyone who is eligible should get the vaccine. It is the only way we can truly beat COVID-19. Vaccinate, don’t vacillate. Novir’s on-site clinics remove another barrier to getting the shot.”
